The Spanish Communists in Argentina have lost all their former influence and control over the Spanish Republican organizations in Argentina. In the election of officers recently held by the Casa Castilla, one of the principal Spanish Republican groups with strong Communist ties, Communist candidates were defeated by large margins. The new board of directors is completely anti-Communist. In addition, the Casa Castilla expelled Communist Benito Dominguez, director of the Spanish Communist newspaper Espana Independiente. All Communist members of Casa Castilla who have placed the organization in an unfavorable light will be removed.
